WHAT WE HAVE BEEN DOING

- Development of the stewardship overview was delayed until a decision was made on the Cabinet paper on strengthening data leadership across government. On 4

September 2018 the Cabinet committee authorised the Government Chief Data Steward to set mandatory standards and guidelines and direct agencies to adopt common data capabilities.

- Creating a draft overview of government data stewardship practices is now underway. It is informed by the Data Strategy and Roadmap which was published on 18 October 2018.
- Engagement with citizens and government was due to start on 1 December 2018 but will now start in February 2019, first with government officials then more widely.

HOW WE ARE INCLUDING DIVERSE VOICES

- We are developing an engagement plan that will use multiple channels to seek feedback on the draft overview from a wide range of citizens and government officials.

HOW WE ARE KEEPING DIVERSE COMMUNITIES INFORMED

- We will publish the engagement plan and a summary of feedback received up to the end of April, and use multiple channels to advise communities that these are available. Future updates will use the same channels.

WHAT'S NEXT?

- The draft stewardship overview will be published in February 2019.
- An engagement plan will be published and implemented in February 2019, seeking feedback on the draft overview.
- A summary feedback report will be published after the initial engagement period has ended.
